Program Description

Dental assistants play a key role in supporting dentists during procedures, as well as performing tasks such as polishing teeth, making x-rays, preparing dental materials, and sterilizing instruments. In addition, some dental assistants take on administrative responsibilities, including managing the office, handling patient accounts, scheduling appointments, and ordering supplies.

During this program, students will gain classroom, laboratory, and hands-on clinical experiences by working with patients at the College of Dentistry at the University of Iowa and in community dental offices/clinics.
